Staying Out

Staying out of prison can be very hard. A lot of people don't want to go back but they find themselves in the same old situation.

You know the drill: money hassles, housing hassles, drugs and the same old scene.

Are you sick and tired of ending up in prison?

- Are you getting out in 12 weeks time?
- Do you want to stay out?
- Would you like some support?
Ask your Welfare Officer about CRC's Transition and Support Programs.

What can our Programs do?

CRC's Men's Transition Workers can provide assistance with finding accommodation (the Men's Transition Program does not provide housing), drug and alcohol issues, dealing with other agencies like Centrelink and family and social relationships.

The Men's Transition Project:

- Provide pre and post release support
- Aims to help people stay out of prison
- Works with people for up to 12 weeks before they are released
- Works with people long-term after release

Who can apply?

The Men's Transition Project and Support Program will give priority to those who:

- Have very little support on the outside
- Have 12 weeks to go before release
- Have (or have had) drug or alcohol problems
- Have a history of going in and out of prison

Ask your Welfare or Services and Programs Officer for more information about the CRC Programs.
